COMBAT PATROLS OF UNITED NATIONS PUNCH SEVERAL MILES NORTH ON HEELS OF AN EVASIVE RED ENEMY; CHINESE AND N. KOREAN INVADERS STEP UP RETREAT

U. S. 8th Army, in Charge of All U. N. Ground Forces in Korea, Clamps Down Rigid New Security Blackout on Dispatches Relating to Any Allied Units or Their Positions.

By Lee Ferrero
(I. N. S. War Correspondent)

TOKYO, Mar. 19—(INS)—From five principal positions 17 miles south of Korea's 38th Parallel, United Nations combat patrols punched several miles north today on the heels of an evasive Red enemy.

With the big central pivot of Chunchon reportedly deserted, the Chinese and North Korean invaders stepped up their wide retreat to such an extent that contact with the foe was broken off along practically the entire front.

The U. S. Eighth Army, in charge of all UN ground forces in Korea, clamped down a rigid new security blackout on dispatches relating to any Allied units or their positions.

It did so after its commander, Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, alerted all of his international troops across the peninsula to be on the lookout for any surprise Red counter-offensive, once Korea's drenching spring rains set in.

In a special memo, issued to war correspondents at 4.15 Monday afternoon (2.15 p. m. EST), the Eighth Army security press division declared:

"The Eighth Army is holding its units 17 miles south of the (38th) Parallel at five points across the Korean peninsula.

"Patrols are operating miles north of those points and (north of) all other sectors."

There was no precise immediate explanation of the statement that the Eighth Army was "holding" its units, except patrols, 17 miles below the Parallel, the pre-war boundary between the Korean Republic and Communist North Korea.

Security officers stated that the blackout on news dispatches referring to the specific locations of UN troops was imposed "because in the past 72 hours there has been no significant contact (with the enemy) anywhere along the front."

These officers emphasized that.

Remove Bullet From Back of Richard Hayes

The .32 caliber bullet which halted Richard Hayes, Bristol Township, as he allegedly was fleeing from a detective early Saturday morning, was removed later at the Jefferson Hospital.

Hayes, it is reported, will be paralyzed from his waist down due to the bullet striking the spine.

Alexander Houston, identified as a Bell Telephone Co. detective, said he surprised Hayes attempting to steal a telephone from a street booth at Schumacher Drive and Murphy avenue, Bristol Terrace 1. It was four o'clock Saturday morning.

Bristol Township Chief of Police Joseph Seader said that Hayes admitted robbing other telephones in the area. Detectives had been on the trail for three weeks.

TELLS OF ESCAPE FROM COMMUNISTS

Beautiful Hungarian Singer, Katalin Karady, Tells of Red Rule

BEHIND IRON CURTAIN

This is the personal story of beautiful Hungarian singer and actress Katalin Karady and of her recent escape from the Communist terror in her homeland with Oliver Lantos, top crooner in Budapest and his country's "Bing Crosby."

In a series of six articles, of which the following is the first the blond Hungarian star tells not only of her perilous, cloak-and-dagger flight to safety with Lantos in the American zone of Austria, but describes what it means to live under red rule today in Hungary and elsewhere behind the iron curtain.

By Katalin Karady
(Exclusive to INS)

SALZBURG, Austria, Mar. 19—(INS)—We paid $2,000 to be smuggled out of Hungary. The price was cheap.

For when life becomes the bitter tragedy it has in Communist Hungary, it is a hell and sooner or later everyone reaches a breaking point.

The decision to flee comes suddenly—as in the case of Oliver Lantos—or it is carefully planned and thought out for weeks and months ahead, as in my case.

In the west when you don't like your neighbors you are free to pack up and move. If you can't find a job in San Francisco, you can try in Chicago.

In Hungary, you must stay and suffer. No one can legally leave, not when he or she could tell the world that Hungary is a police state where Stalin is absentee ruler and Matyas Rakosi & Co., his land-

STUDY DEVELOPMENT OF 4-COUNTY AREA

Commissioners Consider Growth of Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery

HAVE TENTATIVE PLAN

NORRISTOWN, Mar. 19—Meeting with Montgomery County commissioners here on Wednesday to discuss organization of a four-county planning commission to guide growth of the area, were 16 men on whom rests responsibility for reasonable and proper growth of the four counties.

The commissioners of Bucks, Chester and Delaware counties met with those from Montgomery county, and the director of the planning commission of each county was presented with a tentative plan for organization of an inter-suburban county planning commission by Francis A. Pitkin. Mr. Pitkin is executive director of the State Planning Board.

Attending the meeting from Bucks County were Simon K. Moyer and Joseph W. Hallowell.

The commissioners and planning chairmen present voiced their agreement with the theory of an inter-suburban commission and each planning chairman will present the tentative plan to his own County Planning Commission. The decisions of those commissions will then be taken to a meeting of the commissioners and chairmen to be held in the near future.

Pitkin pointed out that 60 per cent of the population growth of Pennsylvania for the ten years between 1940 and 1950 has been in the four counties represented at the meeting, and in Philadelphia.

The increase, he said, has been: In Bucks, 33.9 per cent; in Dela-

BUCKS COUNTY HAS CHAPTER OF JR. HISTORIANS

Operating Group Small But Active at George School

Two Other Chapters Were Active But Then Discontinued

By Al Spivak
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Mar. 19—Local heritage is a living thing to 16,000 boys and girls who are writing the history of hundreds of communities in Pennsylvania today.

They are members of the Federation of Junior Historians with chapters in 215 secondary schools in the Commonwealth.

Their goal is to root out the vast stores of untapped information relating to the localities in which they live.

Educators consider local history a long-neglected part of a school child's training in citizenship.

"Few textbooks on local or county history have been written because they would not be profitable financially," explained Dr. Paul L. Cressman, director of the State Public Instruction Department's bureau of instruction.

"Perhaps this has worked to our advantage," he added. "Boys and girls have an opportunity to go out and dig up their own material on an area's past."

While this would not be practicable on a state or national scale, Dr. Cressman pointed out, it has shown encouraging results on local and county levels.

"The youngsters definitely have shown a great ability to do it," he said.

The Federation has been at the forefront in this activity since 1942. Coordinator of the statewide group is Miss Avis M. Cauley, a secondary education advisor in the Department of Public Instruction.

"Our 16,000 members are interested in exploring their local heritage in its relation to Pennsylvania and the United States," asserted Miss Cauley.

The boys and girls, ranging in age from 12 to 18, interview older residents of their communities, study muncipal records and scan newspaper files.

Their research has proved of

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Congress plans to take an Easter vacation after Friday, but Democratic leaders warned the Senate that unless agreement was reached for a vote on the issue of troops for Europe the vacation would be little more than a week-end. Senator Maybank saw little likelihood of tighter wage, price and rent controls as long as the international situation did not grow worse.

Spain was reported to have told Ambassador Griffis she would supply troops for the defense of Western Europe if the United States gave her arms and munitions.

The Soviet Union and Communist China each have 4,000,000 men under arms, the British War Office said. The Soviet Army was estimated at 175 divisions and 2,800,000 men backed by heavy reserves, and the Chinese Army at 2,500,000 men.

Responsibility for the assassination of Premier Razmara of Iran was placed on the United States by Pravda, Moscow Communist newspaper. In London concern was expressed over the swing of Iranian sympathies toward Moscow. An unusual footnote came from Pennsylvania State College, which, at the request of the State Department, is sending its champion soccer team on a good-will mission to Iran.

The Soviet Union is moving to liquidate the peasant class by merging collective farms into "agricultural towns."

In Korea, United Nations forces closed in on Chunchon, which the Communists seem to have abandoned in a withdrawal behind the Thirty-eighth Parallel.

Former President Grau San Martin of Cuba and ten of his followers were indicted for alleged frauds said to total $40,000,000.

TRUMAN AS A MARTYR

Having tried every other device as a means of attempting to dodge responsibility for the mess which he has produced in American national affairs, President Truman last week took refuge in the final expedient of cornered incompetence — an air of martyrdom.

Brazenly he told reporters, who asked whether he was going to clean house as a result of the many recent revelations of favoritism and the selling of influence, that his "house was always clean," and that his staff was "honorable."

Ranging on from there, the President indirectly compared himself with the greatest figures in American history — George Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Jackson and Cleveland. All these men had (like himself) been criticised and scolded by the generation in which they lived. Only years later, he continued, were their virtues and brilliance recognized.

He asked that the press be content to let "history" evaluate the Truman Administration — presumably twenty-five or fifty years from now.

Going still further, the President attempted to outguess history on the evaluation of his Administration, and, in speculating on what it will be remembered for, said he thought it would be best recalled for its sincere effort for world peace.

This is a singular boast for Mr. Truman to make. If there is any one failure which is most conspicuous in his record, it is the failure to win the post-war peace, after his predecessor had won the war.

By the grace of providence, the full responsibility for the United Nations program, the final peace conferences with Staling, and the very foundations of post-war economies and political balance were delivered into President

It also was announced by committee chairman Sen. Estes Kefauver (D) Tenn., that the committee would welcome Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as a witness. Burglaries and Hold-Ups Net Thieves $1,700

Philadelphia—Burglaries and holdups throughout Philadelphia today netted thieves more than $1700 worth of valuables and a load of birdshot for one pair of evil-doers. Robert Golphin, 45, told police he fired a single blast of birdshot at two burglaries as they forced open the kitchen door of his home and they fled. Other burglars broke into the home of Charles Abramson in North Philadelphia and fled with $600 in cash and a necklace valued at $100, police said. Six Nations Initial Schuman Plan

Paris—The chief delegates of six nations today initialed the Schuman plan for pooling Western Europe's great coal and steel production. This will set up a giant new market of 150-million consumers. By putting their signatures of approval on most points under dispute, the delegates cleared the first major hurdle in the way of removing those trade barriers that have always interfered with the flow of commerce in continental Europe. The removal of these barriers would for all intents and purposes merge into one unit the markets of the six countries taking part in the plan—France, Western Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

ABOLISH IT

It is now easy to understand why Jesse Jones proposed more than a year ago that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be given "a decent burial." Out of his extensive experience as former chairman he knew there was no need for an RFC in times of great prosperity and that "government lending in competition with private business is not a proper function under our private enterprise system."

Mr. Jones, it may be suspected, was also aware of the possibility that there would some day arise a situation precisely like the one which has now been brought to light. As an intelligent American he could see that only men of unusual integrity and exception courage would be able to resist the pressure which politicians and get - rich - quick entrepreneurs would put upon the RFC's directors. Obviously the present board is not composed of men of that type.

So unethical, indeed, have been many transactions uncovered that it may be questioned whether some of the directors had the slightest sense of decency.

Certainly harassed taxpayers should not be called upon to put up money for continuance of an agency that has thrown federal money at all sorts of dubious enterprises running all the way from dry-cleaning plants to luxury hotels.

SCHUMAN PLAN PROGRESS

The Schuman Plan has been the subject of negotiations for many months—and during that time the prospects for it seemed to be growing steadily darker instead of brighter. So it is a surprise to read that American intervention has brought about tentative acceptance of the plan by France and West Germany.

According to a dispatch from Frankfurt, the industrialists of the Ruhr are now ready to back the Adenauer government in agreeing to put the great resources of that region under international control. It was chiefly their opposition that prevented the plan from being put into effect.

The support of the German industrialists was not tendered as a free gift. U. S. High Commissioner McCloy is reported to have consented to a stipulation that would permit a steel company in the Ruhr to own coal mines capable of supplying 75 per cent of its needs. The American objective had been to bring about entirely separate ownership of steel and coal. So this provision of the understanding is a compromise.

Under the plan, the industry of the Ruhr will sell to an international market comprising France, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg. The object is to keep any country—particularly Germany—from dominating Ruhr industry. The question is whether this compromise will accomplish that end.

People are asked to be kind to men with ulcers. It is not explained how differentiation is made between ulcers and taxes.

Theodore Lippincott & Son, who have been occupying the property, have retired from business. Mr. Henry will return to Maine the latter part of the week to make arrangements for moving his family here. During his absence John Bachofer, Sr., has charge of the business. Mr. Henry purchased the Lippincott stock, and is adding new to it.

Langhorne—The forty-nine goats shipped by Samuel C. Eastburn to Great Barrington, Mass., despite the 168 miles of slow transit, displayed their usual show of spirit upon their arrival.

Langhorne — Sorosis was well represented at George T. Johnson's on Thursday, the 16th, when the following delightful programme was rendered: "Russian Territory and its Possibilities," Mrs. Sara E. Allen; "Legendary Russia," by Mrs. Wilmer Stevens Black; "The Cossack in History," Mrs. Pierson S. Fretz. The papers were bright and original and brought forth much discussion. Next meeting at Mrs. Allen R. Mitchell's October 30th.

Penn Valley — Report of Penn Valley school for month ending Sept. 26th: The following pupils attended every day during the month: Maggie T. Mather, Muriel A. Bevan, Etta Dickel, William Dickel, and Benjamin T. Patterson. Walter Jewell, Earl Daley and William Nolan each missed one day or less. Total number enrolled — twenty. Average attendance—sixteen. Per cent of attendance, eighty-eight.

The Western Union Telegraph Company has opened an office and placed instruments in the building on Pond street, near Mill, formerly occupied as a barber shop.

The local hunters have been out in force gunning for squirrels. As far as learned Ed Himmelwright leads in bagging the greatest number of the bushy-tailed inhabitants of the woods. On Saturday he got nine. Gabriel Schiesser was a good second with seven to his credit.

At the last regular meeting of the High School Alumni the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Howard R. Thornton, president; Miss Anna A. Lattimer, secretary and treasurer. The time for holding the regular meeting was changed to the first Monday evening in each month. The dues were fixed at 75c per year. A cordial invitation is extended to all high school graduates to become members.

Charles S. Wilson has purchased eight acres of the Johnson tract, adjoining the land of the Simons estate, opposite the Bristol Cemetery, and will erect a factory for the enameling of leather. Mr. Wilson is extensively engaged in the business, and for several years has occupied the Pearson mill on Buckley street.

A big force of workmen has been engaged since Monday laying the tracks upon Mill and Radcliffe streets, in Bristol, for the Trenton and Bristol Street Railway Company. A pair of horses and four mules attached to a heavy plow is first used to rip up the macadam streets, shovelers follow and prepare for the laying of the ties. The work is progressing rapidly and the rails have been laid from the railroad crossing to the corner of Mill and Radcliffe streets. The work is being done in the most substantial and satisfactory manner. Extra heavy, wide-flanged, 60-feet rails are used and the space between paved with vitrified brick.

George G. Fetterolf, the former editor of the Langhorne Standard, who has been ill and suffering with an obscure disease for the past three months, died at the Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, on Sunday. Mr. Fetterolf was taken to the hospital for the removal of a large cystic tumor of the abdomen. He was operated upon on Tuesday of last week by Prof. William B. Van Lennep, a surgeon of national fame . . . . The operation was witnessed by the Chester, Delaware, and Montgomery County Medical Society, besides many Philadelphia physicians. Mr. Fetterolf was unable to rally after the operation, however, and death came upon Sunday. The newspaper fraternity, as well as the many friends of the deceased, will sincerely regret the loss of Mr. Fetterolf, who was a newspaper man of long experience and ability.

Install Mrs. Beerbower As "Star" Worthy Matron

The annual installation of officers of Morning Star Chapter, No. 395, Order of the Eastern Star, was held on Saturday afternoon. The room took on an air of spring with a beauteous array of spring flowers.

Chapter members met in special session in the Travel Club home for the purpose of installing newly-elected and appointed officers for the ensuing year.

Mrs. Ethel O'Dea, past matron of Morning Star Chapter, was the installing officer. The obligation was given by Mrs. Ida Johnson, P. M., and assisting were Mrs. Adelaide Bekes, organist; Mrs. Mary Schmdti, P. M., marshal; and Mrs. Margaret Thornton, P. M., chaplain.

The elected officers installed are: Mrs. Josephine Beerbower, worthy matron; Mrs. Cordelia Mucklow, associate matron; Mrs. Lena Broadbridge, P. M., secretary; Mrs. Hilda Wunsch, P. M., treasurer; Mrs. Lillian Kuhn, conductress; Miss Elizabeth Foster, associate conductress; and the following appointed officers: Mrs. Florence Foster, P. M., trustee; Mrs. Mary Damian, chaplain; Miss Louise Smoyer, marshal; Mrs. Louisa Ridge, organist; Mrs. Frieda Kohler, sentinel; Mrs. Pearl King, warder; Mrs. Violet Tranter, Mrs. Anna Herman, Mrs. Hannah Wilson, Mrs. Hilda Albright, and Mrs. Helen Tomlinson, the Star Points.

The jewel of office for the retiring matron, Miss Louise Smoyer, was presented to her by her sister, Mrs. Damian, after which she was invited to take a "stroll through the garden" by Mrs. Elsie Burton, P. M. Miss Smoyer was escorted to the various officers, who, with appropriate verse, presented her with flowers in emblematic colors making a bouquet of spring flowers, which was deposited in a vase. When she was escorted to the east, she was met by Mrs. Charlotte Doan, her cousin, who sang original lyrics to the air of "Blue Skies" and was given a gift and a vase of spring flowers from the Chapter.

Mrs. Beerbower was next invited by her asosciate matron, Mrs. Mucklow, to accompany her. She was escorted to the west, where her officers awaited her, having formed a semi-circle. Each pledged to her their loyal support and cooperation, and each presented her with a gift. As she was escorted east she was met by Mrs. Ida Johnson, P. M., who sang to her "Together." She, too, was presented a vase of spring flowers by the Chapter.

Frederic Allen, acting worthy patron, was presented by Mrs. Ethel Keyser, P. M., with a monetary gift for his 19 years of service.

Miss Louise Smoyer was escorted west by the president of the Past Matrons Club, Mrs. Evelyn Johnson, P. M., where the past matrons awaited to welcome her as a member. She was escorted to the altar where she added her name to the roster of those who had served as Matrons of Morning Star, and she was presented a ring from this group and escorted east.

There were guests from many parts of the state who expressed pleasure to be present on this occasion.

The newly-elected and retiring officers received many gifts. This year the banquet will be held on March 31st.

Following the meeting many members journeyed to the "Shrine Club," Rockledge, where they enjoyed dinner.

HULMEVILLE

This evening members of the official board of Neshamony Methodist Church will hold a business meeting at the home of Harold Dasenburg.

William Penn Fire Co. members were called out twice yesterday. One call was to a grass fire at the intersection of Hulmeville and Emilie roads, Middletown township; the other to the property of Harry Carter, Neshaminy street, where a truck ignited, and the fire spread to grass. Slight damage was caused to the truck.

Miss Anna Polsenburg is a patient in Jeannes hospital, Philadelphia.

Truman As A Martyr

Truman's hands in time for him to make whatever he could of them.

He could have held off the fatal San Francisco conference until the obvious blemishes in the United Nations charter were rectified. He could have repudiated one and all of the monstrous secret deal with Stalin. He could have served notice on Stalin at Potsdam that we would not tolerate the betrayal of dozens of our wartime allies merely because they were small and defenseless. He could have stood staunchly for the "four freedoms." He could have demanded and obtained an occupation policy that was just and workable. He could have recognized the hazards of the times and demanded that we preserve the core of our military strength until peace had been firmly established.

But he did none of these things. At every point, he followed the easy, the political, way. He courted votes rather than principles. The result was a colossal, heartbreaking failure.

Five years from the end of World War II, American boys again were dying — and dying on a stage which had been set for the occasion by the deals and the appeasements of the Truman-Roosevelt regimes. Korea was the tragic monument that marked the grave of world peace, deceased of blunder and neglect during the tenure of President Truman.

Second memorial of the Truman Administration to which future generations will turn is the monstrous history of the unleashing of inflation, which is now ravaging the currency and credit of this nation, and, following its present course (and the President is determined to tolerate no change) which will presently bankrupt our government and impoverish our people.

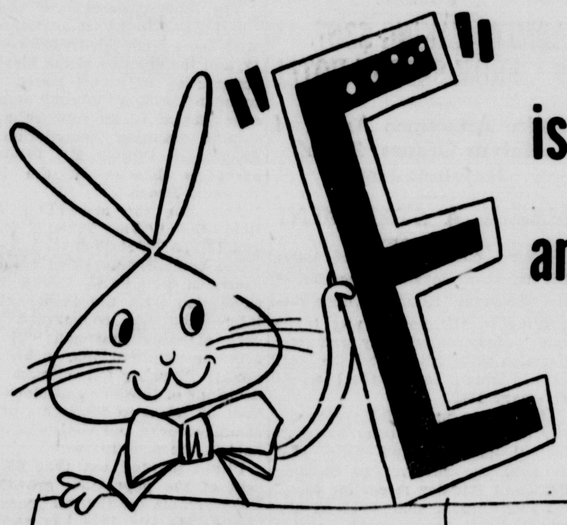

Third great calamity for which the Truman regime will be forever infamous is that in these past six years the communist infiltration has led us to the verge of the undermining and abandonment of the American constitution. Our free Republic is in process of collapse — and the President's reply to the cry of danger raised by the patriots who would have defended the constitution against its enemy has been the misguided falsehood of "red herring."

History, if it is honest, will long remember President Truman. But not for the things which Mr. Truman lists.

Tells of Escape From Communists

lords. (Rakosi is deputy premier and communist leader of Hungary).

To "discourage" these flights to freedom the communists have set the price for failure at imprisonment, sometimes death.

For example, we were aware of the story of Stefan Kardos. He was a Hungarian engineer who plotted to escape. He joined 20 other refugees, hired a guide to lead them through a mine belt and cross the Austro-Hungarian border.

Kardos alone lived to tell the story. When they were creeping through the bushes toward the frontier, a brace of giant spotlights suddenly pinned them against the black ground. At the same time a young priest in the group accidently touched off a hidden high-explosive mine.

Border police and the mine killed eight, and nine others were arrested. Three reached the Soviet zone of Austria so badly wounded they were taken to a hospital, unable to go on. The Russians ordered the three sent back to Hungary. Kardos alone escaped. One of the three women in the hospital was his wife Gisela. She was sent back to Budapest without her legs.

The border is so substantially escape-proof that to try to worm through without help of an experienced "man-smuggler" invites almost certain death. Trains to border points are controlled.

To drive a car for any distance in Hungary you must have a special permit.

Prices for smugglers are high. So are the risks. The Austrian border is fenced with high-voltage barbed wire. It bristles with land mines, illumination rockets, glaring search beams, bloodhounds and police masquerading as civilians.

The wire is strung in depth, between four and five feet high. The mines are either buried or connected to dangling strands of wire that set them off. Other loose wires set off alarm rockets.

The wire is fixed to wooden fence posts. There are two parallel fences twelve feet apart.

Watchtowers are set 25-feet high and about 100 yards back from the frontier. Practically all wooded areas have been stripped.

All along the border, which runs north-south some 125 miles these towers are set 500 yards apart. The searchlights seem to be operating continuously. There is at least one heavy machine gun with each searchlight crew.

Of course there are ways to escape. For Lantos and I it was a matter of finding the right guides. For the right price—and putting our lives in their hands.

We crawled on our stomachs, slushed through mud two feet deep, waded icy-cold streams and in all, walked 45 miles through the rain.

We traveled light, Lantos came through with the clothes he had on his back, and a batch of sheet music. For when we teamed up to give a show in the small border town of Mikolcz, Lantos did not know that I had spent three weeks arranging this special show near the Frontier simply to make the escape possible. When I told him of the plans, he immediately joined.

He left his mother and father in Budapest. If Lantos had not escaped then, he probably never would — he was due to be drafted into the army the next day.

My Romanian maidservant, Ilona Mohacsi, left with us. She was carrying the only personal clothing we had along, a suitcase with some of my favorite millinery. Half way through the trip the going became so rough we threw the suitcase away.

I left my parents, four brothers and two sisters in Budapest. In my villa I left three fur coats, including a mink, hanging in a conspicuous spot so the houseman would not suspect that I might have fled. I had been under surveillance for months.

After we finished our guest performance in Mikolcz — in recent months we couldn't appear anywhere except on provincial stages — we started out on that cold rainy Monday night together with the maid, two others and two guides.

The border was 15 miles away.

With the applause of the audience still in our ears, we fled like criminals.

At 11.30 that night, while we were on our way, Budapest radio was broadcasting a program of my recorded songs. Naturally, they were hymns of love for the fatherland.

Those last five miles through the so-called no-man's-land on the Hungarian side were torture. We crawled those miles, yard by yard, on our hands and knees to escape the bloodhounds and searchlights. We were bleeding and wet and dirty.

It seems like a miracle that the mines, the entanglements, the rockets, the watchtowers did not stop us.

By dawn we were in the British zone of Austria. We said "thank God" and looked behind at "little Russia" for the last time.

(Tomorrow Miss Karady tells of the constant pressure the regime exerted on her and Lantos because they were not communists — and how the entertainment world has become the No. 1 propaganda weapon of the reds.)

Study Development of Four-County Area

ware, 32.9; in Montgomery, 21.3 per cent; in Chester, 17 per cent; and in Philadelphia city, 6½ per cent.

The tentative plan calls for three members each from Bucks and Chester counties, with populations of 144,000 and 158,000, respectively, and four members each from Delaware and Montgomery counties, with populations of 413,000 and 350,000.

Terms of the members shall be three years, but in order that all terms may not lapse at the same time, it is proposed that of the appointments first made, five (5) shall be for one-year terms; five (5) for two-year terms; and four (4) for three-year terms.

The tentative plan of organization contained:

"Planning activities of this commission shall not be limited to any strictly-defined geographical area, but may include such territory in and near the Philadelphia metropolitan area as may be required by planning problems. In general the area includes Bucks, Montgomery, Delaware and Chester counties."

Further activities will include the assembling of maps, surveys and dates necessary for their studies, the preparation of a flexible regional plan for the area, the development of means by which the commission can assist the several counties and municipalities in putting into effect their portions of the regional plan, the maintenance of educational programs to familiarize the public with specific planning proposals, the proposals of planning regulations and zoning ordinances for adoption by the individual counties and civil subdivisions, the presentation of the regional point of view to State or Federal agencies.

Because the basic function of the commission will be to serve as an unbiased and non-political advisory agency, actual authority for carrying out planning proposals will continue to rest in the governing bodies of the participating counties and municipalities.

POWER MARCHES ON

ELECTRIC power parades across the American landscape into an era of production which promises Electric Living on a scale scarcely dreamed about today.

Our part in this picture is already determined. We're ready now with plenty of power for all demands in this growing and important area . . . and for the new homes, new stores, and new factories that are coming.

This preparedness is the result of farsighted planning and doing by Philadelphia Electric. The building of new generating plants . . . enlargement of electric power distribution networks . . . and many other improvements have been undertaken with the public need in mind.

Progress like this will never stop while the American Way remains to spur us on. Only when industry is free and unhampered by government interference can the benefits of individual initiative be fully realized.

Bucks County Has Chapter of Jr. Historians

value to schools, Miss Cauley said, and has formed an important addition to the hitherto scanty histories of some areas.

The most significant reports are published quarterly in the "junior historian."

"Local history has been explored in some places," Miss Cauley commented, "but many of the most fertile areas have not been covered."

Most older residents of the communities haven't the time or the inclination to probe into the local past, she said.

"The junior historians are probably doing a great deal to interest some older groups in local history," Miss Cauley added.

"The boys and girls don't seem to isolate their localities on a historical basis. They emphasize the local contribution to the broader past of the state and nation."

Miss Cauley said that "above all, they are learning good citizenship because they must rely on their own resources and make their own field trips."

The most important contribution from adults, she said, is encouragement, although financial aid for field trips also can be helpful at times.

Bucks county's only operating chapter of the Federation of Junior Historians is at George School, near Newtown, operated by the Society of Friends.

"This is one of the smallest groups in the state, but one of the most effective," said Miss Cauley.

Ten students are members of the chapter, she said. Faculty member George Halt is the sponsor.

Inquiry regarding membership has been made in behalf of a group of students at Pennsbury Township high school, Miss Cauley said.

"This school seemed exceedingly anxious to join the junior historians," she explained.

A chapter at Doylestown was discontinued at the beginning of World War II and the school has not reapplied. Another chapter was in operation at one time in Langhorne.

George Segal, a member of the George School chapter, wrote a short history of Uhlertown for the fall edition of the Junior Historian.

The Tinicum Township community was a typical wayport on the 60-mile-long Delaware Division Canal from Easton to Bristol, Segal wrote.

"On the Delaware Division, as on all canals, the canal town was a very important center of country life and commercial activity a little more than a century ago," he said.

"With the coming of the railroad and improved roads, in a modern age impatient of lazy canal boats, these towns have faded from bustling centers into small isolated villages. Typical of this is Uhlertown.

"Today its population includes no more than 50 persons, five or six dogs, a pen of chickens, a goat and a handful of intruders from the city. All that remains of the canal flow is a rotting dock and a skating place for children."

Joan Redland, another George School student, wrote an "Early History of Morrisville" in the May, 1947, magazine.

Miss Cauley believes school children fully capable of recording the details of local background if older people will cooperate.

"In Bucks County," she said, "we have had much encouragement from Joseph R. Grundy and Miss Margaret R. Grundy, of Bristol."

She said Mr. Grundy wrote the foreword for the magazine devoted to William Penn in May, 1947.

Additional aid can be supplied via donation of historical documents pertaining to a locality and by governmental units furnishing official records.

Dr. Cressman, a former resident of Springtown, said he would like to see more of Bucks County's history recorded.

"The abandoned iron mines and furnaces in the county offer an excellent topic," he said.

The dearth of local history textbook material cannot be remedied by State action, Dr. Cressman said.

"The Commonwealth cannot publish textbooks in competition with publishing companies," he explained. "And commercial interests will not publish purely local texts because it won't pay financially."

County history books have been published in the past and have proved a financial loss, he added.

"In most cases," Dr. Cressman pointed out, "publication of local or county history books must be on a philanthropic basis."

Cressman said quite a few counties in Pennsylvania have history books but they are "not particularly suited for school use."

He said that "In a sense this has been beneficial in stimulating initiative in boys and girls to do their own research."

"There is a need," he said, "for young people to realize also that history is constantly in the making and as students they should try constantly to record local events."

Dr. S. K. Stevens, chief historian in the State Historical and Museum Commission, reported that the history of Bucks County is being prepared as a series of bulletins for school use by the county superintendent's office.

Similar projects have been completed or are under way in Montgomery, Schuylkill and Bradford Counties, he said.

Dr. Stevens said the commissioners of Lycoming and Clinton Counties sponsored books on county history in cooperation with the Works Progress Administration when that agency was in operation.

"There is a definite shortage of local history material for school use," he declared. "The main problem is who's going to pay for it."

A State law requiring schools to teach Pennsylvania history has aroused recent interest in local history also, Dr. Stevens said.

"There are very few counties in which a great deal of basic historical information is not already available," he asserted.

"County commissioners are empowered to sponsor publication of books for historical purposes but they fear the funds allocated will not be gotten back in sales.

"I suppose it is pretty much up to the school people to supply their own if they want localized history texts."

Woman Missionary to Alaska Tells of Vastness of Country

NEW BRITAIN, Mar. 19 — Miss Estelle Marlin, a missionary sent out by the American Baptist Convention to Kodiak, Alaska, and now on furlough at her home in Doylestown for several months, was the guest speaker at the chapel, here, last week. The affair was arranged by the Boyd Junior Bible class, which is particularly interested in Miss Martin's work.

"Alaska is a big country," Miss Marlin stated, "with big bears, big snows and unfortunately, big sins, and while it is a challenging place, it is also a heart-breaking one. However, some fine things are being accomplished by the mission work there."

Miss Marlin described the work there as divided into three parts, the children's homes which are so needed in a place where children are often abandoned and where there are no other places for them to go; the church, which was built in 1940 and which reaches into the lives of the town people as well as those of the children, and the boat work, which was instituted several years ago in an effort to keep in contact with the young people who have grown up and left the homes, and who sometimes have a hard struggle to maintain Christian ideals in the midst of generally poor moral conditions.

Miss Marlin, who has served as housemother in charge of a cottage of 14 children of various ages, was more recently taking the place of the superintendent while he was on furlough. She also assisted at the church when the minister was on leave. When Miss Marlin returns to Kodiak, she will be engaged mostly in conducting church activities among the town people.

PASSION WEEK
Monday
THE DAY OF AUTHORITY

"And they were astonished at His doctrine; for He taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes."

O Thou Eternal God, Thou who didst so love us that Thou didst send Thine only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life; we thank Thee for this gift of Thy love. We come into Thy presence and call upon Thee in His Name. We would look upon Him with hearts of love and through eyes of faith beholding the beauty of Thy love and the strength of Thy saving grace as made manifest in Him and through Him and by His death we are made whole. Continue Thy favor and blessing with us for we pray in Christ Jesus' Name. Amen.

Paragraphs of interest to those interested in the Bristol Young Men's Christian Association.

Bensalem A. A. went into second place in the Y.M.C.A. Youth Basketball League by virtue of winning three games last week. The "Owls" now trail the league leading Rohm & Haas team by only one-half a game. In the first game they took Croydon A. C.'s measure by the score of 31 to 25. Here it was a case of too much "Bob" Whitfield and "Al" Bader for the Croydonites. In addition to their high scoring these two boys gathered in many rebounds to aid in controlling the ball. "Bill" Brady played his usual good game to keep Croydon in the game with Embiscuso and Coffman assisting him. In another game with the league leading Rohm & Haas team Bensalem went over the top in defeating them by a 67 to 45 score. Again it was "Bob" Whitfield who paced the "Owls" to this victory. However his sidekick "Al" Bader was out due to an ankle trauma received in a previous game. It appears that "Al" will be out for the rest of the season. However Robinson and "Luther" Royds with their aggressive tactics aided in this victory.

In still another game with Harriman Methodist the "Owls" ended up on the long end of an outward appearing runaway score of 52 to 25. However the score does not present a true picture of the game as Bensalem was extended to go all out to win this one, as the game was by far the best that they engaged in last week. Charlie Rauch, Norm Slaymaker, Bascio, and Bob DeVencenzo played excellent ball for Harriman, but Whitfield, Dwyer, and Paul bested them as they hit more often and their shots and retrieved the ball more often. The game was well played and it was not until the last quarter that the "Owls" pulled away.

Two other games were played last week and neither one of them was very impressive. In one of them Rohm & Haas, in spite of ragged playing, eked out a victory over Fourth Ward. The warders played better together as a team but the Rohm & Haas aggregation over-powered them by a 46 to 32 score. Tom Brescia, Bart DiGiralamo, and Lou Sabatini, played well for Fourth Ward.

In another game the sagging Bristol Gunners were pushed down another notch by the rejuvinated Fourth Warders. Newcomers Joe Wilkins, and Bob Marshall teamed with Bob Stroebel to lace the gunners 40 to 16. The only remnants of the Gunners of old was Vito Manzo who retained his fighting spirit despite the lopsided loss.

As it now stands in the league Rohm & Haas is in 1st place ½ a game ahead of Bensalem. 1½ games ahead of the fourth place Bristol Gunners. It appears that the standings of the 1st four teams are very fluid and no one team is sure of its position. More than likely this battle will continue down to the last game of the season.

Two newcomers to the art of refereeing have made their debut at the "Y" and both boys are from Cornwells; namely Bob McKenzie and "Al" Bader; they, along with Bob Braker and Bill Coffman have been proving themselves as basketball officials.

to the best of the Eighth Army's knowledge, no political considerations were linked with the lowering of the news curtain.

Cognizance was taken of such considerations, however, with the statement:

"The (UN) approach to the Parallel brings into focus political problems of significance to the entire world, which we recognize as factors of importance to everyone.

"Nevertheless, there is still the tactical consideration."

Maj. Mel Vorhees of Seattle, chief Eighth Army censor, added that the lack of contact with the enemy is the reason for the blackout. He said that, presuming the Communists are unaware of the new UN positions, "there is no use telling them."
